ly as we could have wished.

A story of alleged kidnapping of an unusual character was told to Mr Mitchell-Innes at the Police Court this morning. The man who related the story gives name as Chang Yau-sang and describes himself as a merchant in Canton, and his story is as follows :- While journeying from Canton yesterday in the river ateamer Hankow, be saw a woman in the women's compartment who seemed to be in state of stupefaction; and almost simultancously he heard three men were in the men's compartment quarrelling with the passengers who round about. One of these men he heard say; They are man and wife ! your own business. The merchant asked the man who was referred to as husband who the woman was and he replied; Bhe is my wife. Bhe has been unfaithful and I am taking her to Hongkong to sell her. The woman was on one side of the bars, and the three men were on the other mide. He then found out that the quarrel was caused by the people wanting to give the woman some augar as an anti-stupeder, and the men refusing allow them to give her some. He there upon gave some sugar to a woman who was near the stupified woman to give her. On receiving it, the woman recovered a little. She then I don't want to go to Hon kong. three men found me on board. The man who told the people to mind their business then told the merchant that he had better mind his business, or might get into trouble himself. The merchant wisely took himself off at this and reported to the purser, who had the men arrested by the Police and charged.

CHEUNG Young Tin, the man who was charged with entering house No. 8. Kat U Fong, with intent to commit a felony and with being armed with a deadly weapon, on the night of the riots in Gough Sirect, was this morning fined $15 at the Police Court by Mr Mitchell-Lunes for being without a night pass. We do not know, what reasons influenced the Magistrate in inflicting so slight a punishment on the prisoner There was distinct and un-PERSONAL PROPERTY OF STREET, SALES house from the trap door on the roof while two men, evidently his companions; remained on the roof, and that he threatened the gook with a sword when the latter called out for help. And there was the testimony of the lukong that he chased the man over the roofs of the houses and arrested him in the Yat On Club. It is true that when the man was searched in the Club no sword was to be found, and there were suggestions made that he had be heard in the Supreme Court on Monday Poh, one of the witnesses who were called for the defence, on the versudah would seem to support the lukong's statement that he entered from the roof rather than the door. On the evidence, therefore, (it seems to us that the prisoner was guilty of the orime with which he was obergod; and that the paitry fine of $15 was utterly inadequate for the punishment of the offence As to the suggestions which were thrown out against the lukong by the witnesses for the defence, especially those made by Chan of violence and the borrowing of money, as much reliance; we think, may be placed on to the statements of the lukong as on those of Chan Chak Poh. A man who is willing to shield a rowdy who disturbs the peace and good order of the town, as the compradore expressed himself ready to do, cannot surely be possessed of hyper-sensitive notions of his duty towards right and wrong

These men are drilled for civil war. It is idle to oouh-pooh this movement. There is more body in it than many people imagine. O this we may shortly publish some information, which, maybap, may startle the easy going public not a little. For the present however, we content journelyes with noting the statement from Armagh, and remarkmeans stands alone.

THE Swatow correspondent of the Amou Greette, writing on the 28th ultimo, given an account of a somewhat movel entertainment which was given recently in that port. .. He says :- I send you herewith a programme which was fulfilled by Fasha Nostaw, on Faturday, evening last, to the great delight of the fair audience, who mustered strong on this occasion. The music played on a ten or fifteen ceute mouth harmonica or whatever it is termed was really good and was loudly encored, and was answered with Home. Sweet Home. It is his first performance in Chins. I b lieve that he will call at your port shortly; if so, you will have a treat. The Chinese here seem to have persuaded him to give them a performance or two He speaks reversi languages and does his work well. After Pashs Nostaw bad finish ed his performance, the chairs were removed and dancing was commenced and kept up till about midnight. The musicians, Mesers Reeves and Kahler, with piano and vicini delighted the audience. They were relieve ed by one of the fair audience and an admirer, to allow them to take a turn round mind the floor of the flwatow Club also kindly then lant for the occasion, to whom great thanks

Its front faces the new furt, on the extreme western eminence, and the guarda' rooms at the foot of this rock, while at the back ics a hill on the summit of which a house is being built for the doctor, with a view of both sides of the island. It would have been difficult indeed to find a more picturesque or more siry situation for a lazaretto, but the very first thought that strikes one on looking at the works going on around one is that the prime requisite for such a place as a lazaretto-isolation-had not entered into the minds of the authorities. In front of the building there will be the large fort alluded to, which must be filled with soldiers in the case of an emergency, while not far distant on the other side there will be another fort doubtless also filled with soldiers. There a nothing at all unlikely that in the time of war an epidemic of cholera should break

The question thus arises, would any officer place men in forts in the close vicnity of which was a lazaretto crowded with This nice muddle which has arisen an tirely owing to a want of unity of action between the War Office and the Government of Hungkong .- the Home authorities having apparently a supreme disregard what is going on locally-has at last beer cers here and negotiations have been open-

Adjoining this room is the largest ap r ment in the place—the Chinese ward. HOUSE DRAINAGE.

The Hongkong substitute for the clear and precise regulations governing the construction of house drains in American and English cities reads thus

IX. The Surveyor General shall in Case any House, whether now existing or hereafter to be constructed or reconstructed, shall not be provided by shall be imperfectly provided with any of the Works in the last immediately preceding Section specified, or with one or more proper Drain or Drains to the said House, of at least Six Inches in diameter, give written Notice of every such Deficiency to the Owner or Occupier of the said House, thereby requiring him to provide for and make good the said Deficiency forthwith or within some apecified and reasonable Term to the Satisfaction of the Surveyor General: and in Case the said Owner or Occupier shall not obey or combuilt lazaretto with a view of devoting it to ply with the said Requirement, the said Surveyor General shall cause the said Works to be executed, and may recover the Charges and Expenses thereof together with his Coats of Procedure by Summary Application to a Stipendiary Magistrate. or any two Justices, who shall, in Case of Default in Payment thereof, leve the Amount so recovered by Warrant of Distress and Sale upon the Goods and Chattels of such Owner or Occupi r. without Prejudice to the Right of their Party: to recover over, retain, or deduct against the other the | did, in the case of the British Government, Amount so paid or recovered.

The gist of the Hongkong law lies in the words to the eatisfaction of the Surveyor General. These words certainly give the Surveyor General plenary powers to deal with every house drain in the Colony in any manner he may deem fit. This being the case, are the present house drains to the satisfaction of the Surveyor General? Both the Local Government and the Cloninl Office admit that the drainage of the city is very far from satisfactory. In the somewhat sophistical reply which was given to the Chamber of Commerce to its communication, requesting that our local quaractine law should be modified so as to be in accordance with the Imperial law on the subject, one of the principal reasons advanced for refusing the Chamber's request was the insanitary condition of the city; and it is well known that this insanitary condition is. for the most part, owing to defective house disinage. It is therefore quite evident that the house drainage of the city is not to the satisfaction of the Surveyor General, otherwise he must be satisfied with what is officially de-

HONGKONG.

The following paragraphs form the concluding portion of an article on Hongkong which appears in a work entitled Her Majesty's Colonies, just published, which comthe authority of the Royal Commission in connection with the Colonial and Indian Exhibition. Among other subjects touched on in the subjoined extracts is that of increased communication between the Government and representative Chinese on questions affecting the welfare of the community, more especially of the antive portion. and strong arguments are used in favour of adopting some such measure as we advocated last night. We intend to refer to the

There can be little question as to the popularity of British rule with the Chinese. The promises held out to them in the early proclamations inviting them to the island have been conscientiously kept, and in the treatment of them throughout there has been a sympathetic consideration for their ausceptibilities which has n t passed unappreciated by the mass of them. The consequence has been that after the first few years of the settlement the Chinese have flocked to the place, and have made it their tennorary home. At first their liking for British rule was an indefinite mentiment of relief at the unwonted freedom to which they were introduced, and it took them some time to realize that the sverities of government to which they were accustomed actually not exist.

With the lapse of time this liberty of action and absence of any outward demonstration of power has generated in the Chinese mind a consciousness of strength, I bon a review of the whole history of through to Japan via Merv, Samarkand, and which, combined with the insuperable c ntempt which at heart nearly every Chinaman fee a for the manners and institutions of foreigners, occasionally leads to danzerous manifestations of defiance to the laws of the Colony: and there is always a risk that with their constantly increasing numbers and their powers of combination they may get out of control and take the law into their own hands. An instance of this occurred so recently as 1844, when, in consequence of a fine having been inflicted on some boat people for refusing to work when legally bound to do so, the entire boating population struck work, all ness was suspended for two or three days. the military had to be called out, and for some time the gravest consequences were apprehended. This risk is also especially great at the present time, when the Government is about to energetically take up the question of sanitition: for it touches so nearly their demestic concerns, and any vatematic endeavour to introduce Western deas of sanitation into the Chinese quarter must so inevitably strike at the very rout of some of their ingrained notions. nothing but the very prestest tact and dethem and not against them, and to guide rather than force them. -It is not improbate tends with its growth. By the attitude as dreds of miles from Meshed the Holy. ble that when lange questions of policy involving sustained consistency of treatment or a lengthened time come to the front, an attempt will be made to broaden the basis of representation of this portion of the population, and to admit them to a share the government. The machinery by which the Government has hitherto kept touch of the Chinese population has been mainly by the instrumentality of the Registrar-General's Office. The head of this department it for 'certain' nurposes protector of the Chinese, and in the absence of other means it has been the fushion to recogni im as the medium of all communications to and from the Government with the Chinese. So long as the Chinese required protection this system worked well enough but now, when the a teation is reversed. and it is rather the foreign community that requires protection, some other system is required. This was practically recognized n 1870, when the semi-political, semi-charitable institution of the Tung Wa Hospital, which has already been mentioned, was founded. It had, however, the drawback of being left entirely in the hands of the Chinese, without a representative of the Government on its working Commy sion and it has in the lapse of time gradually assumed the role of a sind of secret conclave for the management of Chinese affairs spar altogether from the Government. Nor is he Government able to consult its members unreservedly, because its political character, though very easy to have been foreseen, was never a owedly taken into calculation; and it is, in fact, though in many respects a very admirable institution, and ble Chinese in the Colony, not altogether in touch with the Government It works intelde of all, spart from the Government and cannot therefore be regarded as an ef fective part of the body politic. Aytfur ther attempt in the direction of bringing the Chinese into closer connection with the Government has been made in the appointment of a Chinese gentlem in to an unoffi cials at on the Legislative Council; but even this is not considered a wholly ade quate basis. The appointment is made by the Government, and not by election, and t is always competent for the Chinese to say that he does not represent their opinions. With the important questions of sanitation and taxation pending, it is likely holder possesses of protecting his family h that a change will before long be made and it is not improbable that it will take member will be elected to represent the Government and it is very important that the sound advice and valuable information that they are able to give in matters affecting the Chinese population should be utiliz-

AN ACCOUNT OF CONFUCIUS. By Bull Nya.

Confucius was the Launised name of a kind of hinese humorist whose name was real v. Keing-fu-tre.
